

Linamar Announces the Completion of its Acquisition of The Camshaft Business of Muhr und Bender KG and Mubea Motorkomponenten GmbH

October 1, 2013 (GUELPH) – Linamar Corporation (TSX:LNR) announced today that it has completed its acquisition from Muhr und Bender KG (“MKG”) and Mubea Motorkomponenten GmbH (“MMKG”) of MMKG’s business of manufacturing and distributing assembled camshafts, located in Hildburghausen, Thale and Thale-Warnstedt, Germany.

“The acquisition of the Mubea assembled camshaft business adds leading-edge lightweight and fuel efficient hydroformed and assembled camshaft technology to our existing technology portfolio on camshafts,” said Linda Hasenfratz, CEO, Linamar Guelph. “Additionally, their capabilities on hot forging production will provide a significant enhancement to our machining and assembly operations, globally. We are pleased to add Mubea’s talented workforce and advanced manufacturing capabilities to Linamar.”

The camshaft business will be operated out of 3 locations in Germany employing approximately 110 people and comprising nearly $25 million in sales with an expectation to nearly double in size in the next 4 years.
